Moslem Federation

By Clarissa Lorenz

The Washington Post (1923-1954); May 24, 1941; ProQuest Historical Newspapers: The Washington Post (1877-1996)

pg. 7

Moslem Federation

THE 20,000,000 Moslem Federation subscribers are seen in the Sec-tury of the Moslem Federation, a large religio-cultural organization which has been on the world scene for many years. The Federation was formed in 1923, and its members are located primarily in India and Pakistan. The organization is known for its work in promoting Moslem unity and for its efforts to combat isla-racism. The Federation has played a significant role in the struggle for Moslem rights in India and Pakistan.

The Federation has been criticized for its role in the partition of India and Pakistan, and for its support of Islamic fundamentalism. However, the Federation has also been credited with playing a positive role in the struggle for Moslem rights.

The Federation has been involved in many activities, including education, charity, and political lobbying. The organization has also been involved in promoting Moslem unity and in combatting islamophobia. The Federation has been a major force in the Moslem community, and its leaders have been influential in the Moslem world.

The Washington Post (1923-1954); May 24, 1941; ProQuest Historical Newspapers: The Washington Post (1877-1996)