

The Scholar-Escort for the program is Hicham Assaoui, a PhD candidate in the University of Arizona Department of Second Language Acquisition and Teaching (SLAT). His areas of specialty are Arabic language teaching, psycholinguistics, and cognitive sciences. Assaoui earned a BA in English Linguistics from Hassan II University in Morocco and two MA degrees from the UA – one in SLAT, another in Middle Eastern and North African Studies (MENAS). He has taught English and Arabic in Morocco as well as Arabic at the UA. A native of Morocco, he is the perfect person to in organize/implement the pre-travel program, coordinate with the travel agency while traveling in Morocco, and teach the Arabic language part of the program.
